My dear Miss Tweedy

I am very sorry that I should not have been able to call this morning and with you and your sister go to the Church you spoke of yesterday and still more sorry that I had no way of sending you word of my inability to come at the eleventh hour.

I hope to be back to town at the latter end of the week and unless something unforeseen turns up to prevent, run down (or up) to Plainfield, for my own pleasure, and also to let them know in Milwaukee as much about you as possible.

I suppose you have heard of that going out of that bright consummate star, Mr Fisk. It is a melancholy—a sinister warning to all young men of his craft.

I should like to carry back West some understanding as to when you and your sisters are to return to Milwaukee, and if you will get ready before this time next week, it wont be necessary to say anything about it—but just to go.

Please give two days notice and I will arrange it so as to pick you up at Plainfield on the way back.

With warm regards for your sisters

Believe me

Sincerely yours

Robertson James
